

Supplemental Figure 2 Comparison of adult healthy, pediatric healthy and pediatric IBD subjects' bacterial community composition using principal coordinate ordination.

Principal coordinate analysis is used to depict the relatedness of bacterial communities based on presence or absence. The axes represent the first two highest discriminating axes using the unweighted Unifrac distance metric.

Supplemental Figure 2

PC2 (4.1%)

