

Written by Cynthia Thomas
Designed and illustrated by Sarah Patterson

"A good place to start is the emergency department," said Aunt Mary. "Hi Ben, this is my niece Jill. She wants to know what nurses do and where they work," said Aunt Mary to one of the nurses.

"I didn't know men were nurses," Jill said.

"There are lots of men who are nurses," replied Ben.

Jill and Aunt Mary were driving to their next stop when they passed by a school. Jill shouted, "My school has a nurse. Does this school have a nurse?" "Yes, it does. The school nurse helps students when they are sick. The nurse also checks the children's eyes and ears to make sure they can see and hear the teacher," smiled Aunt Mary.

At the clinic Jill met Kiesha, who is a nurse practitioner. Kiesha listens to patients' hearts and lungs with a stethoscope. She asks them lots of questions to find out why they are sick and puts the information into a computer.

Have you ever listened to your heart with a stethoscope?